ART IMAGE SCHOLARSHIP $445 Scholarship to 25-Hour SAT Academic + SAT Retreat Program

About the Scholarship Contest

n her Summer 2011 Newsletter, Dr. Pace invited students and their parents (or any adult) to submit a story that this art image suggested to them. Guidelines included: Stories should aim to increase hope in the survivors of the Great East Japan Earthquake and Tsunami. This Newsletter includes the five stories that were awarded scholarships.

Recipient: Mrs. Bonnie Keller Tiffany

Mrs. Tiffany gave the scholarship to her daughter Erin, who attends Mount Saint Joseph Academy.

've always kept watch over Kameyo...a sweet girl with pools of heartbreak in her eyes. Yet, despite her challenges, Kameyo helps the unfortunate with a smile that eases the deepest pain.

It is true angels hold a particular soul especially close. As the tsunami threatened the shores where she stood, I cradled her, shielding her from the savage waters.

Kameyo means "tortoise," symbol of long life...if it is God's will, may this delicate child be blessed with longevity. I know, as her guardian angel, that Kameyo, an angel on earth, will touch many hearts and soothe many sorrows.

he bastion of blue crashed upon the shore and flowed into the village. I witnessed my upbringing succumb to the waters. Yielding to my inevitable fate, I let the waves approach. The weight of the watery mountain collapsed itself upon me, and I was swept off along with my childhood.

Warm arms embraced me.

When I awoke on dry land, I didn't remember anything. However, my hope has become stronger. The skies look bluer. The grass looks greener. Looking up to the sky, I whispered "thank you" to the unknown force that carried me and gave me a second chance.

Recipient: Kelvin Wong

Kelvin, who attends Council Rock High School North, gave the scholarship to his brothers, Nicholas and Samuel who attend Newtown Middle School.

stare at the waves and see a beautiful lady. Everybody dies, but not everybody lives. Those were the last words I heard my mom say before she got swept away out into the deep blue. I'm not really sure what she meant, but all I know is that I have to keep my hopes and dreams up even after the disaster. The waves move smoothly, but I no longer see the lady in sight. However, I'm still gazing at the waves because the image of the lady is in my head and I know she will always protect me.

Dear Dr. Pace,

Thank you for everything you have helped me achieve over the years. I now can truly appreciate what I have learned from your classes. I will attend Drexel University in September, and I am excited to be accepted into the Pennoni Honors College as a Business Major. I received the A.J. Drexel Scholarship for $19,000 a year and was extremely grateful that I will be able to attend my first choice school. Again, thank you very much for all of your encouragement. I am so lucky to have had the opportunity to be one of your students.

ART IMAGE SCHOLARSHIP

$80 Scholarship to Slaying the Dragons of Standardized Tests

Recipient: Megan Burns

Megan, who attends Gwynedd Mercy Academy, gave the scholarship to her brother Michael Burns who attends Saint Helena School in Blue Bell.

his picture exemplifies power of nature on our earth. When this tragedy occurred, living things fearful were their destiny. In this picture, I see the face of an individual looking down on the face of another individual, whom he is holding in his arms. This God represents holding us in times of need. As the water moves on land, God moves along with it to protect us. The waves demonstrate God moving within us as we move through the ups and downs of our lives. The colors represent the diversity of those he protects.

Recipient: Jessica McPhillips

Jessica, who attends Nazareth Academy High School, gave the scholarship to her sister Julia, who attends Nazareth Academy Elementary.

his picture tells the story of two lovers, a handsome sea merchant and his lovely wife who lived together on an island. One day after the husband left for work, disaster struck the island. Everything was washed away, and the wife fell ill from the catastrophe. When her husband returned, he was horrified at what he saw. Everything green had turned to gray, and his wife was in need of his help. His love and care for her brought her back to health, and together they rebuilt their little island, restoring it to new life.
