Coloring without Lines: ART OF THE NEW COVENANT

Patricia Sisca Pace, Ph.D.

many of us hold a secret hope in our heart that something mysterious and beautiful waits quietly within us for its chance to live. For people like us, life becomes a journey, first to discover that magical gift, whatever it is, and then to nurture it and set it free to do good in the world. Occasionally, the nature of the gift totally surprises us because we were expecting something entirely different. Then suddenly, out of nowhere, a treasure appears...almost as if it had been looking for us. This book is about such a discovery, as well as my attempt to understand the mystery of it, spiritually and psychologically. In it, I write about how coloring without lines found me while I was searching for peace for my family, and then how this enchanted form of art, quite serendipitously, became the medium through which peace graced our lives. Ultimately, this is a story about coming home to family and to self.

—Patricia Sisca Pace, Ph.D.
